Incorporation Top 1977 L.G. Story

The biggest story as far as residents here are concerned would be the incorporation of the community into the City of Lemon Grove.

The City and its residents are just now beginning to enjoy the fruits of the development after the election March and laying on the official mantle of cityhood on July 1. Many people are taking their problems to the city council and getting some direct answers rather than a run-around.

Other matters had varying degrees of importance to the community as a whole, but many were extremely important to those involved.

JANUARY

Dale Willey, 18-year veteran of the Lemon Grove postal service was crippled when he fell after a guard dog escaped its pen as Willey was delivering mail on Blossom Hill dr.

Willey retired as a result and still walks with crutches.

A 15-year old girl was arrested for being drunk and for assaulting a sheriff's deputy in the process.

Parents of the youngsters attending Vista La Mesa school were unsuccessful in getting a school bus stop moved from Blackton dr. to a side street after an auto had crashed into a house behind the stop. There were no students in the stop when the accident occurred. Parents argued that other accidents at the curve made the stop dangerous.

FEBRUARY

The L.G. Chamber of Commerce, suffering the pains of inflation, raised dues enough to cover an anticipated shortage of $700. $36 memberships went to $40.

Portia Goode, well-known and highly respected veteran school board official was stricken with a heart problem and died. She was on the governing board of Grossmont College at the time.

A bar at 7603 Broadway was doing a thriving business selling mixed drinks at 50c each until it was learned the owner, Robert P. Reid, had no liquor license. He was arrested.

Yvonne Redlin, 71, was the victim of a purse-snatch near Winchell's in Lemon Grove. The purse contained $50 plus personal papers.

MARCH

Free lemonade was disbursed on the week-end before the incorporation election at Broadway and Imperial by sponsors of the election. Candidates made speeches whenever people gathered.

The local newspaper—THE LEMON GROVE REVIEW—carried a banner head following the March 8 election on incorporation. It read, simply: 'CITY IS BORN'.

It also named the councilmanic victors: Jim Dorman, Dr. Robert Burns, Jack Doherty, Dell Lake and Dale Bailey.

An old dodge with a new approach broke out here. Two men, claiming to be insurance executives told Archie Wilson, 87, of Pacific ave. that he had a rebate of $140 coming from his insurance.

The grateful Wilson made some coffee leaving the con men in his living room. After the refreshments, the men took their leave and agreed to get the check to Wilson forthwith. Later, Wilson discovers $200 and other valuables had been taken while he was brewing coffee.

Gayle C. Peralew, 28, became the first bra-burglary victim on record here.

She cashed a check for $173 and stuffed the money in her bra.

A man demanded the money claiming he had a gun. He got the money.

Police listed the bra matter a holdup rather than a burglary.

The County Board of Supervisors proclaimed March "LEMON GROVE CITYHOOD MONTH" and Sup. Lucille Moore presented a large plaque to the yet-to-be seated councilmen.

L.G. Chamber of Commerce installed Dr. Griff Clark as president. Former mayor of the City of San Diego, Frank Curran, was speaker.

Heavy rains, measuring .28 of an inch, brought the season rainfall total to 8.17 for the season which ends July 1.

A new Federal Handicapped program for school was the basis for a school tax increase scheduled for the fall tax bill.

The L.G. City Council-elect met for the first time and drew a popular reaction.

APRIL

Lemon Grove annual Old Time Days activity began with a carnival at the L.G.

Rainfall Totals Nearly 2 Inches

The season rainfall stands at 4.50 inches bolstered by last week's storm which left nearly 2 inches of rain in the east county.

Last year at the same time the total was 3.61.

By days rainfall was:

December 22—trace; 23—.24; 24—.26; 25—.44 and 26—.1 inch.

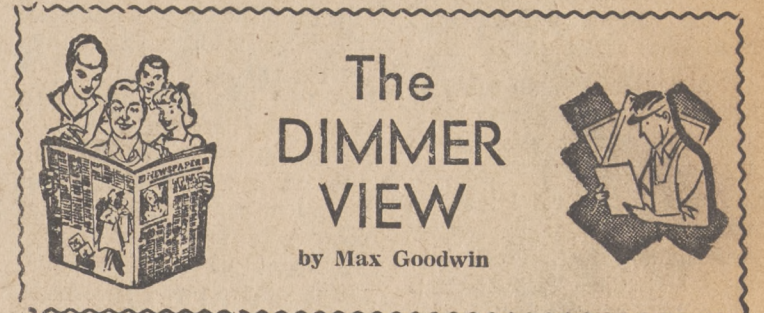

Rainfall season ends July 1.

L.G. Reimbursed $42,812 in Taxes

A total of $42,812 was received by the city of Lemon Grove as the December apportionment of state-collected cigarette taxes, "in lieu" motor vehicle license fees and highway users taxes.

License fees take the place ("in lieu") of local property taxes on motor vehicles and are returned to local governments for general spending purposes.

Highway users taxes include gasoline and diesel fuel tax as well as miscellaneous revenues.

Poorer Crops and Bureaucrats

More and more lawmakers are becoming distressed with the quality of lawmaking we're getting.

Assemblyman Bill Craven, a maverick when it comes to talking on bureaucrats, let his hair down the other day and did a piece that is almost chapter and verse of the stuff we have been telling him, and other lawmakers.

Here's what Craven said:

There are times when one could swear that the bureaucrats in Sacramento are running a contest to see which agency can come up with the most short-sighted, irresponsible and unworkable regulations. And if they are, the Department of Agriculture has come up with a mild contender for this year's grand prize with its recent anti-pesticide proposals.

If implemented, these new regulations would force every farmer in the state who wished to use a pesticide to first prove that there was absolutely no other way he could control the pests ravaging his crops. Then, once he had made his study and filed his report, he would be forced to watch the bugs chomp away on his crop for 72 hours while the county agriculture department conducted an investigation to determine if his need was legitimate.

The regulations are supposedly intended to encourage the use of natural predators and other non-chemical forms of pest control. But as any farmer can tell you, their effect would be far different. At best, the new regulations would be costly, ineffective and a nuisance to farmer and agricultural agent alike. At worst, they would lead to widespread crop destruction throughout the state.

The fact is that 72 hours is more than enough time for some pests to totally wipe out many kinds of crops. Add to that the time required to conduct the necessary studies and fill out the required forms, and the delay becomes even greater. In some cases, by the time a farmer receives authorization to use a pesticide, it would be too late. He wouldn't have a crop left to save.

Moreover, there just aren't enough county agriculture agents in the state to handle the kind of work load these regulations would produce during peak growing seasons, which means that 72 hours would become the minimum delay a farmer would face.

It's hard to believe that the Department of Agriculture would even be considering these potentially disastrous regulations. But not only is the Department considering them, it seems to be stacking the deck in favor of their adoption.

How else does one explain the Department's decision to schedule the lone hearing on these proposed regulations for December 20, just three weeks after their existence was made public? The officials who scheduled the meeting must certainly know that the agricultural community cannot hope to prepare an adequate defense in that short a time. And they must also know that by scheduling the hearing so close to Christmas, the are severely damaging the farmers' chances of mounting a united front.

For its part, the Department of Agriculture denies all responsibility for these proposed regulations: it merely says that they were drafted by the Environmental Defense Fund, a radical environmental group with a long history of anti-agricultural actions. But that doesn't explain why the Department is bothering to even consider these proposals at all, much less its obviously prejudicial selection of a hearing date.

One can hope that the Department of Agriculture will be hit by a massive bolt of common sense before these regulations are enacted and one of the farmer's last lines of defense against total crop destruction may be one way of protecting us against chemicals in our vegetables—but it's certainly not the best.

The Ol' Holiday Spirit

It was mid-October.

The customer was negotiating for a $25 used auto air-conditioner compressor at Acme Auto Dismantlers at 7950 Imperial ave. in Lemon Grove.

The firm's owners, Rick Tighe and Walt Mace were distracted long enough for the "customer" and the compressor to disappear.

Amid the firm's Christmas cards last week came an unusual one. It had a money order (which requires no signature) in it with this hand-printed note:

Dear Sirs: Enclosed is money order for air conditioning unit I took' — It works fine. Merry Christmas.

The spiritual urge at Christmastime is strong.

Will L.G. Annex S.D.?

The ST. PETERSBURG TIMES, a distinguished daily newspaper, carried a front page story of the last week's windstorm in California in its issue of December 22 (92 pages).

A 3-column picture showed a tree blown against a Lemon Grove house. The caption read "Winds uprooted 60-foot pine in San Diego suburb of Lemon Grove."

A casual reader gets the idea that San Diego is a Lemon Grove suburb.

With the fine government enjoyed by Lemon Grove, and the problems faced by the S.D. City Council, the St. Pete Times may be prophetic.

Parking Fines To Be Listed by DMV

SACRAMENTO — If you park overnight New Year's Eve and receive a parking ticket for doing so, you will have to pay it before the DMV will allow you to re-register your car.

After December 31, the DMV will get records from the courts stating the number of parking violations certain vehicles have on them.

Listed on the registration bills will be the amount of parking fines. These will be figured into the bill vehicle owners receive from the DMV. One check for all can be sent to the DMV but they will assess a $2 administrative fee within the total.

If the ticket is paid to the court, a release statement from the court clerk is needed.

Only parking tickets issued after January 1 will go onto the Department of Motor Vehicle bills.

The new regulation is expected to add some $15 million to the state's treasury.

Victim is 3rd in Holiday Crimes

S.V. Woman Found Slain in Schoolyard

Mrs. Teresa Evelyn Weinmann, a teacher's aide at Kempton Elementary School in Spring Valley became the third slaying victim of the holiday week-end when her nude body was discovered behind a handball court of the school where she was employed. She had been beaten about the head.

Weinmann, 43, of 663 Concepcion ave., left her home about 11:30 p.m. of Christmas Eve to shop and to deliver holiday packages.

When she had not returned early Christmas morning, her 15-year old daughter reported her missing to the sheriff's office.

Her car was found by friends and neighbors who undertook a search. It was parked near Kempton School, 740 Kempton st.

A youth playing near the school discovered her body and notified a school custodian. The bare leg of the woman was protruding from beneath a pile of leaves and a tree which had been partially blown over during the recent storm.

Her clothing was found near the handball court wall.

Police theorized that the woman had been slain elsewhere and dumped at the school ground. The school playgrounds are fenced and locked on week-ends and holidays with only a pedestrian turnstile open.

A school spokesman said Weinmann had worked for the school 1½ years and did her work well. She dealt with bilingual children and those who were not up to average in classwork.

Weinmann was the mother of 3 children, ages 5, 7 and 15. It was reported that her husband, Charles K. Weinmann, was not living at the Concepcion st. address and that marital differences existed. He operates the National Spring and Brake Co. in Spring Valley.

The other slaying victims are apparently not connected with the latest one, police said.

The body of Elizabeth Ann Heidt, 20, of Pepper dr., El Cajon, was found in Jamul Friday. A still- unidentified woman's body was found Saturday in Santee. She is approximately 30 years old.

Deputies of the Sheriff's Homicide Division can place Weinmann in the 7-11 convenience store at Grand and Jamacha blvd. between midnight and 1 a.m. Christmas morning.

The clerk was busy at the time selling mostly film and flashcubes and doesn't remember the victim who is of Mexican extraction, short, with dark hair.

Help Wanted

Anyone who was in the store at the time are urged to contact Detective Cellucci or Detective Crawford at Homicide. The phone is 236-2944.

SANTA (ANA) GIFT — Tumbleweeds nearly four feet in diameter, blown in by the high winds last week, dwarf the garage and patio area of the home owned by Mr. and Mrs.

John C. Ek of Lemon Grove. Mrs. Ek (pictured) said another fenced patio was completely filled with the weeds.

LG City Gets Bill

Weed Plagued Lawton Street Rescued by LG City Officials

by Fred Ash

Fanned by last week's high winds, a four year struggle to clean the tumbleweeds out of a five acre patch of open space below Lawton drive in Lemon Grove may be over.

The problem went to seed last week when giant tumbleweeds, many spanning some four feet, were blown into the residences along Lawton drive. Only slight damage was caused.

The residents, tired of the same problem each year, called up the city of Lemon Grove to complain of the nuisance.

And it was a frustrated LG Fire Chief John Ott who took the first steps to get the problem cleared up.

Each year since 1973, the mammoth tumbleweeds pulverize the property along Lawton street, a one block long cul-de-sac at the East end of Mt. Vernon st. overlooking Sweetwater road and Spring Valley.

Below the street lies a sloping open area, partially developed by the Saratoga Development firm.

Sources say the county acquired most of the property around the Saratoga development some time ago through a bankruptcy proceeding and has since refused to claim responsibility for it.

LG Fire Chief John Ott said his investigation into the ownership failed to turn up anyone who would claim the property.

"As far as I can tell," said Chief Ott, "the former owner deeded the property over to the county. But the county won't accept it. No one wants to claim it so the best thing I can say is it is in limbo."

Chief Ott is charged with enforcing fire codes which dovetail with the tough new Lemon Grove City weed abatement law.

The weed abatement law enacted by the LG City Council on September 12 requires property owners to clean up fire hazard weeds under threat of $50 fine or, if need be, having the city clear the land and send the property owner the bill.

Since it is a question of who really owns the property, Chief Ott said it is more than likely the City of Lemon Grove will get the bill.

"I've fought this for two and a half years," said the Fire Chief, "My hands have been tied all along. Be we are seeking bids to clean the area up and are going to try to get someone in there this week."

Caught in Deadline Squeeze

LG City Narrowly Misses Park Rec. Grant Funds

Lemon Grove will be left out on State Open Space and Recreation Grants despite an effort to include the city on them.

Last week in the Comprehensive Planning Organization, the body which collects and reviews grants from the various areas in the county to present for approval to the Board of Supervisors, decided it was too late to include the new city in this year's allocation.

San Diego County qualifies for more than $1.6 million in the 75 percent state funded program which funds park and rec projects.

The requirements are that areas put up at least 25 percent in matching funds, the projects must conform with the county general plan, projects must be within the most heavily populated areas in each jurisdiction, and the projects must be directed towards the "most urgent and unmet needs" of the residents.

According to both L.G. City Manager Jack Shelver and Senior Regional Planner Ruth Potter of the Comprehensive Planning Organization's staff, Lemon Grove was excluded on a motion by Supervisor Roger Hedgecock.

Hedgecock's point was there was insufficient time to re-CPO review board is made up of representatives from the cities.

Hence, with Lemon Grove

There's An Answer

by Mr. and Mrs.
Norman Vincent Peale

The Dark Side

Q. I'm a man who has had all kinds of problems since the day I was born. My biggest problem always have been fear, anxiety, worry and seeing nothing but the dark side of everything.

But worst of them all, I always think of suicide as being the only correct way out of my misery.

Please help for I know I'm wrong and need to change my attitude and my way of thinking. I realize it but don't know how to go about it.

A. You did not have problems the day you were born—since no baby has problems. Rather, you developed the problems. You determine what you are, and you can shake off the fear which you yourself developed.

The way to do it is to believe and affirm that God is with you, helping, guiding, protecting, and that there is nothing to be afraid of.

If you really—and we mean really—cultivate that attitude, your fear will diminish and courage will increase. But you've got to believe this and practice it.

We have a booklet, "You Can Overcome Any Problem", which has helped others with questions such as yours, and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may receive one by writing to us in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Cutting family out of the will

Q. Would it be right to cut some of your family out of your will? A part of my family has been quite unfair to me. I am not angry with them, but I have been terribly hurt by their harsh words and treatment.

I won't want to do the wrong thing, but I just wonder what to do, I believe you can help me.

A. In making a will you are deciding what to do with your property after your death. Naturally your family should come first in making a disposition of your assets.

The hurts and slights of this mortal life are not carried over into the after-life. So, we suggest that you rise above all such things and make your decisions on the basis of forgiveness.

This will, we believe, bring you peace of mind, for you will have done the right thing. Ready to give up

Q. I feel I can't stand much more trouble.

I'm about to start on my second divorce. My husband lives with another woman and comes to see me sometimes.

I have four children and am 38 years old. He is 30.

Is the difference in our ages the problem, or what? I have so many problems I am ready to give up.

I feel like God has given me all the pain and hurt.

I go to church and ask Him to save our marriage. I am very lonely and unhappy and can't make ends meet.

If you have an answer, please advise me. I sure need it.

A. Your question indicates an emotional upset in which rational thinking is not fully operating. The first thing to do is get calm and think out the problem. And don't blame God. He didn't do it.

Perhaps if you were more urbane, peaceful and self-controlled your husband wouldn't live with another woman.

The difference in your ages does not need to be a problem. If you are about to have a second divorce you had better do something about yourself, because there is a pattern involved that can repeat itself, which indeed it is now doing.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Reading Food Labels: Key to Health and Savings

One New Year's resolution every shopper should make, and can't really afford to break in 1978 is to read food labels.

It's the one relatively simple answer to shopping wisely; providing the best in the way of nutrition for yourself and your family, and checking the rising costs at the supermarket.

"Labels are the key," according to Gary Bart, Area director for Weight Watchers in Orange, San Diego, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties. "Being label conscious at the clothing store costs me more. But at the supermarket, it's ignoring the labels that gets expensive, both to my health and my pocketbook."

There are really only a few tips to understanding food labels and making them work.

Tips

— Even before comparing prices, compare products.

Notice not only the product and brand names, but also the style of packing. Canned fruits can come whole or in sections, for instance: tuna can be packed in water or oil.

In particular, watch for descriptive words like "sugar added." Phrases like "juice drink" can also be clues to knowing you're not buying juice.

— The listing of ingredients on a label is in the order of proportionate amounts by weight.

This can be quite a revelation. It not only tells you what additives, and ingredients are in a product, but also whether there's more bread than veal in the prepared cutlets on sale.

— Knowing that by law, nutritional information must be on any product containing added nutrients, or making a nutritional claim, can give you a wonderful feeling of control.

There is no way you can be fooled by all the psychologically packaged goods, once you know where and when to look for nutritional information for comparison.

It's most often on the back or sides of packaging.

— Once armed with the knowledge of what you are actually buying, you can then compare prices intelligently.

Check amounts by net weight where available, and don't rely on package size, which can be deceptive.

It's the net weight that tells you how much product, without packaging weight, you're getting.

Remember, however, that it does not include any liquid a food is packed with.

— In some cases, the directions for cooking can prove a marvelous source of information.

Take the time to notice what has to be added to the food to make it table-ready.

If milk or eggs are needed, for example, adjust the price in your head when comparing it to a product to which you only have to add water.

Sometimes, the number and size of portions a product will yield can also be found in the cooking directions.

— Finally, use unit pricing whenever it's available. It's very simple if you just remember that it's the unit price which is the standard and, therefore, the one to compare.

The other price on the package is the one you will pay, and is dependent upon the amount of the product the package contains.

It takes very little more time to shop when reading labels, and you can come home feeling a whole lot better about your accomplishment.

The additional time spent in the market, can be time saved in worrying about adequate nutrition. As an added bonus, you will know that you're getting your money's worth.

15 Year Old's Heroics To Be Cited by VFW

Fifteen year old Jeff Broz will be presented National Safety Recognition citations from the VFW at a dinner in his honor hosted by the Mission Valley Veterans of Foreign Wars Post and Ladies' Auxiliary No. 3787.

The dinner will be held at the post home, 4370 Twain ave. on January 7.

Broz will be cited for his role in the rescue of 84-year-old Edith Harris, a neighbor.

On September 16, Broz entered the burning Harris home twice in an effort to reach the trapped Mrs. Harris. He was overcome by smoke on both attempts.

When firefighters arrived the youth was able to direct units to Mrs. Harris's location within the burning home.

Captain Rudolph Covich of the San Diego Fire Department said of the youth's heroics: "The boy deserves a lot of credit. If he had not gone into the house, we would not have known Mrs. Harris was in there."

Jeff Broz will also be given two large savings bonds.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Mission Valley will prepare and serve a chicken dinner. Tickets are $3.50 per person.

Installation Set For Mesa Rebekahs

Mesa Jewel Rebekah Lodge No. 409, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will hold their 27th annual Installation of Officers on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, 2885 Imperial ave., Lemon Grove.

Mrs. Margaret Olson, District Deputy President and Deputy Marshal, Mrs. Norabell Maxwell, will install officers.

Officers-elect for 1978, are Mrs. Joan Sibley, Noble Vice Grand; Mitch Korab and Lucille Woodley, Recording and Financial secretaries respectively; and Mrs. Sally Dietrich, Treasurer.

Also Mrs. Jean Danley, Jr. will be named Past Noble Grand and three year trustee for the Lodge.

Other Officers will be appointed during the meeting.

A short business meeting will be held at 7 p.m. and members and guests are invited to attend.

Health Lectures Listed

Cancer, pain control and nutrition are the topics of the first of a 3-par health lecture series at the Town and Country Convention Center, January 9, 9 a.m. - 2 p.m.

The second lecture February 13 will include a panel discussion on parenting and female sexuality.

The final lecture on March 6 will deal with high blood pressure, over the counter drugs and the effects of sun on the skin. The series is sponsored by the S.D. Medical Society Aux., Cal. Fed. of Women's Clubs, and Cal State Assn. Colored Women's Clubs.

For reservations call 294-6370.

Deadline Nears for Viet Relief Bill

More than 20,000 Vietnamese refugees living in San Diego County might be adversely affected should the Indochinese Relief Bill, now pending before Congress, not be ratified in time.

The bill is to allocate federal funds to individual states for their support of refugees. California refuses to set aside more state funds until the bill is passed, thus closing the doors of the Union of Pan Asian Communities, the only S.D. agency to administer social services to refugees.

UPAC urges individuals to write their representatives in Congress for a speedy passage of the bill.

Blood Month Declared

President Carter has declared January National Volunteer Blood Donor Month and volunteers are needed at the San Diego Blood Bank, 5th and Upas st.

During the holiday season the demand for blood increases and donations decrease, thus lowering January's blood supply.

Bloodmobiles will be available throughout the county. For donors in the La Mesa area a bloodmobile will be at the Grossmont Hospital Auditorium on January 31 between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Freeways May Sport New Type Beetles

Although the "beetle" imported by Volkswagen may be an endangered species, Caltrans has done a little beetle importing of its own.

The transportation department has imported ladybugs from Australia to take care of certain roadside pests such as psyllids, or flies accidentally imported also from Australia.

Also CalTrans has projects going on against tumbleweeds and garden snails. The department claims it does not use harmful pesticides but, rather, imports predators to cure the insect problem.

No clue was given as to the length of time it will take before the predators become pests.

This Week's RECIPE

Shrimp Creole

A colorful and spicy dish that is a break from the heavy holiday menu is authentic shrimp creole.

Peppers and tomatoes decorate this dish deliciously in green and red for a meal that's keyed to the season.

Vary the serving ideas by spooning over pastry shells (available frozen) instead of the traditional rice.

Shrimp Creole

- 1 pound frozen, peeled and deveined shrimp
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil or bacon fat
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1 teaspoon leaf thyme
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cans, (1 lb. each) tomatoes, cut up
- ½ cup water
- ¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons water

Cook shrimp according to package directions. Rinse in cold water and drain. Cut shrimp in half lengthwise, set aside.

In a three-quart saucepan saute celery, green pepper, onion and garlic in oil until tender. Stir in paprika, thyme, and salt. Add cut-up tomatoes with liquid, water, hot pepper sauce and bay leaf. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer 15 minutes to blend flavors.

Stir in shrimp. Blend together cornstarch and water until smooth; stir into sauce. Bring to a boil while stirring constantly; boil two minutes.

Serve in pastry shells or over rice or pasta. (Allow one pastry shell or approximately 2/3 cup cooked rice or pasta per person.) Makes 6-8 servings.

Lost Puppy Held

A small, black, female puppy was found on Massachusetts ave., close to Primera, Christmas Eve. The dog, perhaps a terrier, was found by Pamela Gates who has contacted the Humane Society, the police and this paper with the information.

The puppy might have been intended a Christmas gift for a pet-loving individual. The owner should call 286-9130.

TV Interference Booklet

What do users of millions of new CB radios, garage door openers, and other gadgets have in common?

They're all part of the new electronic explosion competing for space on the nation's airwaves.

As a result, over 100,000 people may complain to the Federal Communications Commission this year about radio and television interference.

If you are a victim of this type of interference, a new booklet from the Federal Communications Commission can help.

In it, sample television pictures show different types of TV interference with suggestions for home remedies.

If these don't work, there is also a section for your service technician describing more sophisticated technical solutions, plus some technical suggestions for the interfering CB'er as well.

For your copy of "Radio-TV Interference Problems," send $1.50 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 015F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Two extra Sunday matinees will be performed at 2 p.m. on January 15 and 22.

Tickets can be secured by calling 461-5309.

College Classes Open

Registration for spring semester classes will be held January 9-13 at Southwestern College.

Lemon Grove and Spring Valley residents who do not belong to the Southwestern College District should check with their district to see if an interdistrict permit is required to attend Southwestern.

Retro Pay for Food Stamp Users

Retroactive payments will be made to eligible food stamp recipients who were denied benefits or had them terminated since December 1, 1974.

Formerly, retroactive payments were only made up to October 1975. The County Welfare Department will discuss eligibility with applicants.

Ginger "Bread"

During the middle ages, ginger was considered so valuable it was traded for a cow or a sheep.

Fun for Children

A series of stories for young children will be presented by "The Pats," a story telling team, Fridays, January 20 through February 24 at 10:30 a.m. in the Spring Valley Library, 1043 Elkelton Blvd.

The puppet show "Hansel and Gretel," based on the Grimm fairy tale, will be offered February 3 by the S.D. County Children's Department.

Muir at Wheaton

William E. Muir, 1202 Lowden, Spring Valley, has enrolled as a graduate student at Wheaton College for the second quarter of the 1977-78 academic year.

Wheaton College is a coeducational Christian liberal arts college located 25 miles west of Chicago. Enrollment is limited to 1950 undergraduate students annually representing all 50 states, some 30 countries, and about 30 church denominations.

Tennis for the Poor

Tennis before butter seems to be the cliché in a public relations move by Avco Community Developers.

The firm recently donated an undisclosed amount to the California Youth Tennis Foundation, a non-profit organization "dedicated to providing no-cost tennis instruction to disadvantaged children."

Chargers Accomplishments Point to a Cherry New Year

The San Diego Chargers have little to apologize for.

Of course, they didn't make it to the Bowl. But rational fans would not be too surprised if the team made the playoffs next year.

Before we get into the, it should be announced that there will be no increase in ticket prices for 1978.

The team finished the season with a 7-7 record which is nearly sensational to those of us who recall the Nightmare Season. In the final game of this season the Steelers took the Chargers 10-9. No embarrassment there.

Several of the games that went to the lose side of the ledger by a touchdown or less.

The end came just 146 days after the S.D. team began assembling at their UCSD training camp in July.

Some of the Chargers' accomplishments in 1977:

— They set a club record with 44 quarterback sacks, bettering the mark of 42 in 1961. The Chargers ranked third in the AFC, behind New England (58) and Baltimore (47) and sixth in the NFL, behind Dallas (53), Philadelphia (47), and Washington (45).

— The Chargers were first in the AFC in pass defense, allowing 1,725 yards. They broke the club record of 2,160 yards in 1966. The Chargers ranged sixth in pass defense in the NFL. The Chargers ranked third behind Green Bay and Dallas in the NFL in yards allowed per pass attempt (4.92) and second to Green Bay in yards allowed per pass completion (9.45).

— The Chargers allowed 105 first downs by passing, breaking the club record of 114 in 1971.

— The Chargers were second in the AFC in total defense, allowing 3,652 yards, second in club history to the record of 3,276 in 1965.

— The Chargers allowed 73.1 fewer yards a game than in 1976.

— The Chargers allowed 205 points, breaking the club record of 219 in 1961. (They allowed 285 in 1976 and 345 in 1975).

— Punt returner Mike Fuller finished fourth in the AFC with a 12.5-yard average for 28 returns.

— Placekicker Rolf Benirschke set a club record with 12 consecutive field goals. Benirschke will attempt to extend the record in 1978. The NFL record for most field goals in a row is 16.

— Running back Rickey Young finished in a tie for seventh place in the AFC with 48 pass receptions.

— The Chargers' home attendance for seven regular season games was 307,826, an average of 43,975. The Chargers averaged 84 per cent of capacity in 52,552-seat San Diego Stadium. In 1976, the Chargers averaged 37,136 home attendance, 6,839 less than in 1977.

The Chargers and the 27 other NFL teams will begin playing 16 regular season games in 1978. The Chargers' schedule includes home-and-away games with Oakland, Kansas City, Denver, and Seattle, their opponents in the AFC Western Division; home games with Miami, Houston, Cincinnati, Chicago, and Green Bay, and away games with New England, Detroit, and Minnesota.

Season tickets for 1978 are available at the Chargers' ticket office, gate E, San Diego Stadium. The ticket office is open this week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Outdoors & Travel

By E. L. "Buck" Rogers

I'd like to say a few kind words about piranha.

They're the toothy little fish featured in James Bond movies and frowned on as aquarium companions for goldfish.

The average piranha you've heard about is some eleven inches long, has a body like a bluegill, a tinge of crimson around his throat, baleful-looking red eyes, and a set of dentures that would put Dracula to shame.

Teddy Roosevelt called them "the scourge of the Amazon," and reported that they could strip the flesh from a grown man in less than a minute. Other reports indicate that they're bloodthirsty little devils that devour everything that lives in the same element with them. They say piranhas are more dangerous than a white shark, a crocodile, a rabid wolf, or a neglected spouse.

Well, only part of these claims are true.

Before I made my first trip to the Amazon I called a Braniff feller, who I figured oughta be an expert on piranha, and asked him some questions.

"Can't help you," was the reply.

"How come?" I asked. "You're supposed to render a service to your customers."

"There's a limit to everything," he suggested, and I suppose he was right. Back in those days even Al McClane didn't know anything about the subject.

So I went to see for myself, and in the dozen or more expeditions I have made throughout the Amazon basin I've gotten fairly well acquainted with this little fish.

We speared a crocodile one time, and, before we could haul this struggling reptile on the bank, a school of piranha attacked and picked his bones clean. I estimated two minutes for this task.

While fishing in a shallow land-locked lake during the dry season, piranha attacked and devoured three out of four peacock bass we hooked. I had a difficult time getting enough fish for dinner that day, but the piranha dined well.

Piranha are attracted by blood in the water and on occasions will attack most wounded animals. But, I am also convinced that these fish are attracted just as readily by the vibrations of struggling or injured animals, just as sharks are.

That's one side of the story.

On the other hand, I have only heard of one account of a person being attacked by piranha, and I've seen thousands of kids swimming in piranha waters and women washing their clothes in the shallows. A large black piranha wrapped my line around a submerged tree once and broke off. Without hesitation, my guide took off his shirt and pants and dived down to retrieve the lure. He and most other Amazon natives I have met do not fear the little fish at all.

Of course, there are more than a dozen species of this fish, and only four are known to be dangerous. The rest are no more vicious than other piscatorial predators swimming around in our waters, and I wanted you to be aware of this fact.

Piranha aren't all bad, after all.

SD State U Hosts Cabrillo Games Tonight, Friday

East meets West in the first round of the Cabrillo Classic Basketball Tournament when S.D. State U. hosts Fordham University. The Aztecs and Fordham (Bronx, N.Y.) hook up at 9 p.m. Thursday in the San Diego Sports Arena while Purdue takes on Pittsburgh in the other first round game at 7 p.m. The tournament finals will be played Friday.

San Diego State has been an up and down team this season, but appear to be on the up side again entering the tournament. The Aztecs beat BYU last week 104-88 after suffering three losses in a tough road trip to Ohio.

Local Girls in Avon Tournament

Patty Bryan and Linda Newbury are in the pre-finals of the Avon Futures of San Diego Tennis Tournament at Morley Field in San Diego.

Both girls are Lemon Grove residents.

Qualifying rounds start Friday with the final rounds starting Monday.

Night Racing On At Los Alamitos

LOS ALAMITOS—The $25,000-added Miss California Handicap highlights a festive holiday celebration New Year's Eve at Los Alamitos Race Course as nighttime quarter horse action continues in the Horsemen's Quarter Horse Racing Assn. winter meet.

Night racing is held 6 times weekly, Monday through Saturday, with a 7:45 post time. Dollar nights are set for Wednesday evenings with grandstand admission only $1. Senior Citizen Nights are scheduled for Monday through Thursday evenings when seniors (60 years and over) are admitted to the grandstand for $1.

In addition to the Miss California on New Year's Eve, the HQHRA management will provide music and dancing entertainment throughout the clubhouse and grandstand areas. The entertainment will continue following the final race of the evening so that racing fans can welcome in the new Year amidst a gala celebration.

HoC Picks 3 Gridders

Three footballers, two of them from San Diego State, have been chosen November Stars of the Month by the Hall of Champions Breitbard Athletic Awards Committee.

Joining the Aztecs' great running back, David "Deacon" Turner, and defensive leader Whip Walton is the record-breaking Mesa College quarterback, Steve Fairchild.

Adding to his growing list of sectional and national honors, Turner capped his State career by rolling up 1252 yards on 240 carries for a 5.2 average to break the seasonal record formerly held by Jim Allison. His 1889 yards and two touchdowns helped the Aztecs upset high-ranked Florida State, and against Long Beach he became the university's first player to exceed 100 yards in both running and passing. He also passed the century mark against University of Pacific.

Turner has been named to the AP and UPI All-Pacific Coast teams, earned All-America honorable mention and was selected to play for the West in the annual East-West Shrine game.

The durable Walton started 35 consecutive games during his four years as an Aztec and is holder of all school records for tackles and defensive points. He averaged nine unassisted tackles and seven assists and also figured prominently in the team's pass defense. Like Turner, he was tabbed for the East-West game and also was named to Mutual Broadcasting's All-America lineup.

Fairchild's passing wizardry enabled him to set a new National Junior College career yardage mark of 5,039 during his two campaigns. The south-paw flinger led Mesa through a 9-1 season, was elected to the National JC All-America and was a unanimous choice as first recipient of the Joe Roth Memorial Award which goes to the county's outstanding Junior College player.

Certificates of Achievement were voted to Ed Imo, Aztec nose guard, anchor of the defensive front line, and to the Grossmont College cross country team which won its sixth consecutive State Community College championship.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

The last of the Christmas turkey has been mercifully stewed, fricasseed, deviled or boiled into soup and the brightly colored lights are disappearing from rooftops and front yard bushes and trees.

The Yuletide season is over. Already folks are back to being short-tempered and gruff. The friendly, joyful spirit of Christmas has been put aside, along with other colorful trappings, wrappings, tree decorations and fancy ribbons until next season.

Christmas cards have stopped coming, except from the folks who received one from you and forgot to put you on their mailing list. Such belated cards join the only other reminder of the season still arriving in the mail. Christmas bills.

There is really just one more duty to fulfill before you may face New Year's eve with a cool head, steady hand and clear eye.

It's time to grit your teeth and make your New Year's resolutions.

Don't make the mistake of being frivolous or insincere. Only you and your tax man know how honest you really are, but a few well chosen resolutions can turn on your reputation all over town.

I'm taking mine deadly serious this year. I've never been able to live up to my resolutions of the past. Mostly because I was making promises in the wrong direction.

That ain't the way it's going to be this year. Rule number one: I'll be honest with myself, even if not with others.

And the first resolution I vow to, here and now, is NOT to quit drinking. I swear this on my near empty Wild Turkey jug.

In the past I have weakened and faltered and talked of going on the wagon. But not this time. I hereby resolve to be a two-fingers neat man, all year.

Resolve number two: I will resist to my last breath any jogging, running, bicycling or any other forms of exercise on which a wager is not easily placed.

I resolve to reserve my involvement in athletics to watching baseball and football games and girls wearing skirts on windy days.

If I must play, I will swing a golf club or take a hand at gin rummy. More often than not, however, I will watch someone else swing a golf club while I hold a drink.

Third: I will absolutely NOT go on a diet during 1978. Last year I embarked on more than 50 such exercises in futility. Most of my diets started on Monday morning and lasted until noon. Not this year.

I found a way to drink my self slim. I'll just add a few drops of lemon juice in my beer and it will kill all the calories. Long distance runners do it and they don't get fat. The shame of it is they have been keeping it secret all these years.

Fourth: I promise not to laugh at the silly movements of women's lib this year. At least, I'll try not to laugh. If they want to wear pants, burn bras and make dumb speeches about feminist's rights, that's their right as Americans. I applaud them for their efforts, even if they would be better off accepting their proper place.

I take umbrage, however, when otherwise sane females try to do men's work, like shooting pool, writing sports or tending bar.

Not all women belong at home, but certainly some of them belong in one. God made woman to be pleasant, hard working and worthy of a good man's love or else he wouldn't have taken Adam's rib to fashion Eve. Women are, after all, an afterthought.

I will limit myself to these few resolutions. They are reasonable and just and after all, I'm not a trouble-maker.

Let me add, that in keeping faith with these resolutions during 1978, I plan on being a better me.

And to prove my magnanimity, I forgive all you women libbers for any and all the dumb stunts and silly things you'll surely do this year. That's how big I am. Happy New Year.

Ol' Pro Casper Enters Andy Williams SD Open

Five veteran pros with 97 tour wins between them have entered the Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament for its 11th renewal on January 25-29 at Torrey Pines, AWSDO chairman Hal Tebbetts has announced.

Bill Casper, 46; George Archer, 38; Don January, 48; Jug Sanders, 44; and Lee Elder, 43, are ranked third, 18th, 21st, 29th and 42nd in lifetime earnings. They have 51, 12, 12, 20 and two tour wins respectively.

Casper is a two-time winner of the U. S. Open and was Masters Champ in 1970. He captured the San Diego Open in 1966, having shot a final-round 64 under extremely adverse weather conditions at Stardust Country Club that ranks among the best rounds ever shot here.

The former Chula Vista was PGA Golfer of the Year in 1966 and 1970 and topped the money list in 1966 and 1968.

Archer won the AWSDO in 1971, setting the course record of 272 later tied by J. C. Snead and broken last year by Tom Watson. He last won at the 1976 Del Webb Sahara.

January is a former PGA titlist (1976) who was 43rd in 1977 money after having made a remarkable comeback in 1976 at age 45 to win $163,622 and finish ninth in earnings. His last win was the 1976 Tournament of Champions.

The colorful Sanders, often a partner of the famous in Pro-Ams, parlayed a short backswing and great competitive ability to remain in the top 60 from 1958 through 1968 and to appear again in 1970 and 1972. The 1972 Kemper Open was his last tour win.

Elder had his best year of 10 on the PGA tour in 1976 when he won the Houston Open and accumulated $113,263 in earnings to finish 21st. Houston was his last tour victory.

Tickets for the AWSDO are on sale at reduced Advance Sale rates at over 250 real stores, banks, sporting goods outlets and golf pro shops through January 24 at 5 p.m.

Wire Recording Flops

The modern tape recorder was developed in Germany before World War II and later brought to the United States. However, Valdemar Poulsen, of Denmark, patented a wire recorder in 1898 but it was never fully promoted.

Yarborough Silent (Sort of) On Winston

RIVERSIDE — NASCAR Winston Cup champion Cale Yarborough isn't talking about the shape of stock car racing in his future, which will resume January 22 at Riverside International Raceway when the new season begins with the Winston Western 500.

Yarborough will either drive a Chevrolet, a Buick, an Oldsmobile or a Pontiac, but he won't say which one will be at Riverside.

Like a Mississippi riverboat gambler, the Florence County, S.C., commissioner knows more than he wants to tell. But for the record, this is what Yarborough says about what is going on in his racing shops at North Wilkesboro, N.C.:

"We're gonna be in good shape. We're real pleased with the way things are goin'. We've been buildin' chassis, and we'll try sheet metal on 'em later."

Asked about the secret aerodynamic tests the Junior Johnson team conducted recently at Talladega, Ala., with all the 1978 General Motors bodies, Yarborough admitted, "We've got all the information, and we just have to get together and decide what to do."

NASCAR rules permit Yarborough and the other drivers — nearly all the major teams on the circuit are building new 1978 model cars—to use their old equipment one more time, at Riverside, but neither Yarborough nor any of the other poker players in the game has said yet what car he is bringing to Riverside.

The 500-kilometer (311-mile) race on Riverside's 2.62-mile, eight turn road course on January 22 will climax a speed weekend that begins with practice on January 19, pole qualifying January 20, and the Stock Car Products 300 NASCAR modified-sportsman race on Saturday, January 21.

Qualifying for the SCP 300 will be held on January 15.

Santa Fe to Add Extra SD-LA Trip

Funding of the new operation will be provided by the State of California, which is already underwriting a portion of the existing service.

Approval of Amtrak's request increases to six the number of round trips between the two cities. Santa Fe has recommended that the new service go into effect on February 6.

Santa Fe's approval is based on opinion of its counsel that the modified service as proposed by Amtrak satisfies the criteria established for inter-city rail passenger service within the meaning of the basic agreement between Santa Fe and Amtrak.

New Home Loan

LOS ANGELES — Bank of America will introduce on Tuesday a new five-year variable rate home loan program which the bank hopes will stimulate home purchases by Californians.

The new loan program will begin at an initial rate of one-fourth a percent lower than on current fixed rate home loans.

Then every five years, the bank will use the California index compiled by the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco to increase or decrease the interest rate with current market prices.

Also no change in interest rates may occur unless there is more than a one-quarter percent change in lending rates.

The advantage of the new system is that it makes home loans more attractive to bankers.

The bank will also continue to offer fixed rate loans and variable rate loans with six-month rate reviews in addition to the new five-year rate review loan.

Weed Abatement

The immediate future may see no more tumbleweeds bouncing up the driveways on Lawton, but without some sort of regular maintenance, maintenance the residents contend will cure the problem permanently, there is nothing to stop the weeds from coming back.

And Lemon Grove's Christmas present from the county this year may be cleaning up the weeds there from now on.

Energy Generators Unlikely Substitutes

The development of co-generation plants, often mentioned as a possible means of meeting future electric energy needs, is not highly recommended by SDG&E.

According to the company, the output of such plants is small and is not expected to contribute significantly to meeting overall system generating requirements.

Metric System; How it Works

By John Corbett

This is the third in a series of articles on the metric system. A scrapbook of these articles will tell you all you need to know about the system that will replace our present polyglot system.

THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNITS

SI is the abbreviation for the phrase Systeme International d'Unites, which means the international system of units.

SI was established to provide a logical and related association of all measurements in science, industry and commerce.

In SI there are seven basic units and two supplementary units.

The seven basic units are Length — the metre Mass — the kilogram Time — the second Electric current — the am-per Temperature — the kelvin Amount of substance — the mole

Luminous intensity — the candela The two supplementary units are Plane angle — the radian Solid angle — the steradian Combinations of the basic and supplementary units form the derived units. Some of the more frequently used derived units are listed below:

Area—square metre Volume—cubic metre Frequency—hertz Velocity—metres per second Acceleration — metres per second

Force — the newton (mass times acceleration)

Weight—the newton (mass times acceleration of gravity) Pressure or stress—the pascal

Energy of work—the joule Power—the watt Electrical potential — the volt

Electrical resistance — the ohm

Electrical quantity—the coulomb

Jump Cable Auto Starting Hints

Jumper cables and a helpful soul are the simplest aids to motorists stuck with a car that refuses to turn over, but cable jumping is not without dangers and should be done according to these precautionary suggestions:

— Make sure that the discharged battery and the booster are of the same voltage, either six or 12 volts.

— Put the car into neutral or park.

— Remove the vent caps of both batteries to release gas.

— Make sure jumper cables are in good condition, not frayed, torn or damaged.

— Attach one jumper cable to the positive (+) terminal of each battery.

— Connect one end of the second jumper to the negative (—) terminal of the booster battery and the other end to the engine block of the stalled car.

— Use a flashlight to really see the markings on the battery and double check for positive to positive and negative to ground connections.

Stand away from the engine and make sure no one else is standing near it.

Now start the stalled car and remove the jumper cables.

If you have a foreign car, which may have a positive ground, check the owner's manual for jumping procedures.

What You Should Know

About Your Health

Diet Drug Refuted

HCG, human chorionic gonadotropin, a controversial drug widely used in commercial weight control clinics, has been found to be useless in weight reduction, according to Drs. Frank L. Greenway and George A. Bray of the UCLA School of Medicine and Harbor General Hospital in Torrance.

Writing in the December issue of the Western Journal of Medicine, they report their investigation of clinics which treat obesity with diets and injections of HCG, a substance taken from the urine of pregnant women.

Among the claims for HCG treatment are less hunger, spot reduction of hips and legs, and fewer emotional problems such as depression.

Drs. Greenway and Bray say these claims are wrong.

The two physicians conducted a double-blind study of 40 women aged 20 to 40.

The women were 20 percent to 60 percent over normal weight but otherwise in good health. They had not received HCG previously, nor were they taking any medication for obesity.

After physical and laboratory examinations, the patients were randomly assigned into two groups that were placed on a limited calorie diet and received injections six days a week for six weeks.

One group received HCG and the other an inert "placebo."

The injections, identified only by code numbers were not revealed until completion of all injections. The results were tabulated and analyzed by computer.

"There were no significant differences in the two groups," the doctors said, "It is clear patients lost weight quite satisfactorily, indicating a high degree of adherence to the 500-kilocalorie diet."

"The injections of HCG, however, provided no additional effects that could not be accounted for by the diet alone," the doctors continued.

"We conclude, therefore, HCG... does not enhance the rate of weight loss, nor does it significantly reduce hunger or change the ratings of anxiety, hostility or depression."

"The now overwhelming body of evidence (suggests) that HCG is no more effective than placebo in the treatment of obesity," the doctors said. "Therefore, we feel that the 20-year history of the use of HCG in the treatment of obesity should come to an end."

Both the CMA and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration oppose the use of HCG in weight reduction programs.

Charger Booter To Pay Part Salary to Zoo

Rolf Benirschke, the rookie place-kicker for the San Diego Chargers, has announced he will donate a percentage of his football salary to the San Diego Zoo each year.

Benirschke's father, Dr. Kurt Benirschke, is director of research at the zoo.

Benirschke has earmarked his Zoo donation to help fund efforts to increase the captive reproduction of endangered animal species.

"I think professional athletes should be actively involved with the community," Benirschke said, "especially in light of San Diego's support of the Chargers, I feel an obligation to contribute to the San Diego community, and the zoo has always been a particular interest of mine."

Benirschke is a 1977 graduate at the University of California at Davis, where he played football and soccer and majored in zoology. He hopes to pursue his interest in zoological research when his football-playing days are over.

Ask Your C.H.P.

CHP Capt. C.M. Douglas

Last week, Captain Douglas told a reader the CHP operates airplanes out of El Centro to monitor traffic on Interstate 8.

If you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may appear to you, ask it. It could save you a citation or it could even save your life.

Address your questions to this newspaper and please allow three weeks for your answer to appear.

This Week's Question: I haul a lot of plumbing equipment daily and want to know how far the load may extend past my truck.

This Week's Answer:

The load cannot extend past the last point of support for a greater distance than two-thirds of the wheel base. A load may not extend beyond the front bumper for a greater distance than three feet.

Final selection is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service.

The Eleventh edition of Who's Who, published in six regional volumes, features 320,000 students, or 5 percent of the nation's 6,500,000 high school juniors and seniors.

They represent 20,000 of the 24,000 public and private and parochial schools in the country.

1040-1040A IRS Forms May Be Easiest Yet

Recent changes in the tax laws may mean new breaks for many taxpayers—breaks which may come as a relief from Christmas bills.

The Internal Revenue Service has changed the forms this year with several computations eliminated.

Forms 1040 and 1040A have been restyled and are shaded blue and pink, respectively, to highlight key areas.

The restyled form 1040A is now one side of a full sheet instead of both sides of a half sheet. The items on the 1040 form are now in a more logical arrangement and the "taxpayer flip," the phenomena of having to flip pages back and forth has been eliminated.

Income is reported, followed by deductions, tax and credits. When the front is completed, filers go straight to the back page.

Zero Bracket Amount

The standard deduction of years past has been eliminated and replaced by a "zero bracket amount," a fixed amount of income on which no tax can be assessed.

S.D. House Prices Up

The San Diego Chamber of Commerce has come up with some dismal figures for those in the market for a home.

The Chamber said in a news release the average price for a home in San Diego was $68,000, $10,000 higher than in April.

The U.S. average for a similar dwelling was $53,700.

New Tax Tables

About 95 percent of American taxpayers will be able to use the new tax tables. The tables compute zero bracket amounts and the general tax credit (generally $35 for each personal exemption on 2 percent of the first $9,000 of income, whichever is greater).

This means none of these computations will have to be made by those filing returns. Most taxpayers will merely have to locate their adjusted gross income on the proper table to find out how much tax they owe.

Moving Expense

There have been changes regarding distance, as well as time and dollar amount limitations for deduction of employment related moving expenses.

The minimum distance that a person must move in order to qualify for moving expense deductions has decreased from 50 to 35 miles.

The deduction for pre-moving, househunting, and temporary living expenses has been increased from $1,000 to $1,500 and the maximum deduction related to buying, selling or renting a residence has been increased from $2,500 to $3,000.

Capital Gains and Losses

The period of time taxpayers are required to hold an asset for the 50 percent capital gain or loss exclusion has been increased from more than six to more than nine months. Also, the amount of a capital loss that may be used to offset taxable income has been increased from $1,000 to $2,000.

Sales of Homes

Taxpayers 65 years of age and older now can exclude the entire gain from the sale of their principal residence if the adjusted sales price was $35,000 or less. In the past the entire gain was excludable only if the adjusted sale price was $20,000 or less.

Child Support

When a divorce decree does not specify which parent is entitled to claim the children on the tax return, the parent who does not have the custody and pays at least $1,200 toward the support of each child may claim the dependency exemption.

In the past, the non-custodial person qualified for the exemption if he or she contributed at least $1,200 towards the support of all the children, rather than $1,200 for each.

Other Features

There is a box on Form 1040A for taxpayers to check if they wish the IRS to figure their tax. The form should be completed up to the box which says: "If you want IRS to figure your tax, stop here."

Appreciation

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to the people of Spring Valley for the donations that you have been giving to our Paramedic Program. As of this date, we have received approximately $8,000.

This money has helped to defray the cost of overtime that we paid while the Paramedics were in school. Whether you donated $1 or $100 you have helped to make our program a success.

Very truly yours,
Daryl D. Stager, Chief
Spring Valley Fire Protection District

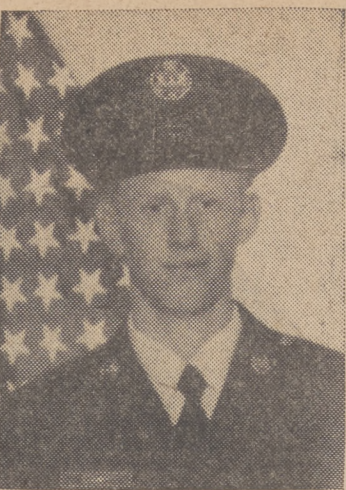

Grateful Citizen

Dear Editor:

Last week I had to call the Spring Valley Fire Dept. for what turned out to be a minor fire because they got there so quickly. Nevertheless it was frightening and the service they gave was gratifying. The men who responded to the call were courteous, considerate and concerned in addition to being super efficient and thorough.

Spring Valley is really fortunate in having such a fine team of fire fighters plus a paramedic service and they deserve our moral and financial support and our gratitude.
